London, May 3.—With regard to the request of a British firm for permission to purchase French coal, the leaders of the Transport Workers have appealed to the men not to handle the coal and declared, in an interview with Reuter's representative, that assurances had been received from Dutch, French, Belgian, German and Austrian workers that they would prevent the export of coal to Great Britain. Furthermore, it is stated that any such attempt would be frustrated at the British ports. It is said that the feeling among the transport workers is such that the importation of coal would not be tolerated.

Meanwhile two steamers with coal from Belgium arrived at Yarmouth on Sunday. The union laborers declined to unload the cargo, whereupon sufficient volunteers were forthcoming to discharge one steamer, the police affording them protection.

The Unexpurgated Diary Of A Shanghai Baby

By Elsie McCormick

MAY first—Not much doing today. Sat in dining-room for awhile trying to lick colour off of red and blue round things which I found on floor. Color didn't come off very well. Later stayed in kitchen with amah while cook was fixing tiffin. Cook's cat took piece of fish from shelf and began to eat it on floor. Cook took fish away from cat and put it on frying-pan. Was surprised cat was hungry, as had heard papa tell friend that he had sat up most of the night feeding the kitty.

MAY first—Mama cross at tiffin. Told papa that the lowbrow friends he met at the club had no place in a proper home.

"That tall one who just came out from the States is round-shouldered from getting in and out of patrol-wagons," said mama. Papa said that some of mama's friends were not so many laps ahead and that fat lady was so uncultured that she thought "The Lays of Ancient Rome" had something to do with eggs.

No more noise during tiffin.

MAY second—Rain. Stayed home and heard coolie play fiddle. Mama said that the only thing worse than man learning to play cornet was man learning to play Chinese musical instrument.

"The trouble is you never can tell when they've learned," said papa.

Hope coolie doesn't get into habit, as family couldn't tell difference in case I wanted to squall for something.

MAY second—Papa didn't go to office this afternoon on account of races. Asked Auntie if she wanted to put up a bet. "Will they give me my money back in case my horse doesn't win?" Auntie inquired.

"Of course," said papa. "Do you think they would be mean enough to keep it?"

Auntie said that she had read about blue-blood race-course sharks and wants to be careful.

MAY second—Still raining. Nothing to do but stay home with wooden elephant and watch coolie sweep dust under living-room lounge. Papa came home later, and mama asked him if his favorite had won.

"That horse was so slow coming in that the judges thought he was winning the next race," said papa, pulling off gloves with unpleasant look. "He certainly was one poor runner."

"How much did it cost you to find that out?" asked mama, but papa had started upstairs to get money out of mama's purse for ricsha man.

MAY third—Sat in dining-room and heard family talk about bridge they had gone to at place called Columbia Country Club. Papa remarked that the family scores, taken together, about equalled the number of votes a cross-eyed girl would get in a beauty-contest.

"It's too bad we didn't play mah-jong instead," said mama. "We might have won the mah-jong set."

"Yes," papa answered, "Think of all the fun the baby could have had swallowing the counters."

Papa said after a moment that he always had been keen about bridge. "I love the sprightly conversation that goes

FRANCE CALLS ARMY AS ALLIES AGREE ON ULTIMATUM TO BERLIN

CAVALRY MOVES TO RUHR DISTRICT

Germany Must Give Unconditional Acceptance Of Terms By May 13; Additional Territory To Be Seized In Event Of Refusal

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 3.—Admiral Grasset, the Commander-in-Chief of the French naval forces in the Mediterranean, arrived in London this morning in response to the summons of M. Briand. The admiral was accompanied by a number of officers.

There are numerous Allied naval and military officers in London awaiting orders from Downing Street, where the Supreme Council assembled at 11 o'clock this morning, following a meeting of the financial experts. It is thought probable that the conference will last the whole day. M. Briand, on being shown the text of the American note to Germany, expressed pleasure at its tone.

Paris, May 3.—Various units destined for the Rhineland entrained at several places yesterday in perfect order. There will be 400,000 men ready to occupy the Ruhr basin by May 9, according to the Petit Parisien, while the Echo de Paris says that the French Mediterranean squadron has been chosen to effect the blockade of the German ports which, in the event of British co-operation, will be under the orders of a British Admiral.

London, May 3.—It is now announced that the Allies have reached complete agreement regarding the military and political measures to be adopted in the event of Germany continuing a policy of evasion and procrastination, excepting the particulars relating to the guarantees to be required of Germany.

Reuter's Agency learns from a French source that the Allies have decided to take all the necessary steps for the occupation of the Ruhr region, and to call out the necessary French contingents.

The Allies will ask the Reparations Commission, in accordance with Article 233 of the Treaty, to fix by the 7th inst. the methods of payment of the German debt, and by the 13th inst. the German Government must notify its unreserved acceptance thereof. In the event of refusal the occupation of the Ruhr district will proceed automatically.

TO DEMAND GUARANTEES

As regards the guarantees, the French demand, in addition to the immediate payment of a thousand million gold marks, which constitutes the reserve of the Reichsbank, the institution at Berlin of a Commission of Guarantee.

London, May 3.—Despite the proferred resignation of Dr. von Simons as Foreign Minister, it is not anticipated in Berlin that there will be any immediate change in the composition of the Ministry. It is generally admitted in responsible circles that there is no prospect of a better solution, from the German point of view, than the Paris decisions, but foreign control of the national finances is bitterly unwelcome to all Germans, who feel that much depends upon the nature of the reply from President Harding to Germany's appeal. This reply is expected to reach Berlin on Thursday.

Germans are still clinging to the hope that it will be held that the treaty does not provide for the occupation of the Ruhr region, whether Germany's defaults are proved or not.

London, May 3.—According to a telegram from New York, the new German Note has been received. It is believed to embody a number of new concessions to the Allied demands.

Berlin, May 2.—Newspapers here state that the Interallied Commission concerning the Upper Silesian plebiscite has despatched a report to London recommending that the districts of Pless and Rysnik and a Strip of Territory East of Kattowitz be assigned to Poland, and the remainder of Upper Silesia to Germany.

London, May 2.—The drafting committee which is engaged in preparing the statement of terms for submission to Germany continued its labors today. The supreme Council only sat for half an hour and then adjourned till this evening.

The Allied experts will meanwhile deal with certain questions which yet remain to be settled.

BRIAND TAKES ACTION

It is authoritatively denied that M. Briand has telegraphed instructions for a French mobilisation with a view to the occupation of the Ruhr district. It is declared that he is awaiting the decision of the Supreme Council.

It is understood that the Allies have agreed in principle on a scheme of presenting an ultimatum to Germany and at the same time proceeding with the military measures which will be used in the event of Germany not accepting or not carrying out the terms accompanying the ultimatum.

The terms have not yet been definitely settled, but will include a provision for guarantees by Germany, and also indications of the penalties which will be applied to enforce the guarantees if these are broken.

Later.—The Supreme Council sat four hours this afternoon and then adjourned till tomorrow morning.

M. Briand stated that an agreement had almost been reached.

Telephonic instructions were sent to Paris from London at 9.30 tonight for the mobilisation of the 1919 class.

The lengthiness of the afternoon meeting of the Supreme Council was due to the fact that it was the first case in which it had the complete financial details of the agreed scheme. The discussions were perfectly amicable, and dealt with the financial projects for the reparations demands.

The Council accepted the scheme generally, but will consider the

SPECIAL CHINESE ENVOY WELCOMED AT LONDON COURT

Chu Chi-chien Conveys Gifts From President Hsu To British Sovereign

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 2.—Chu Chi-chien, the special envoy of the Chinese President, was accompanied on his visit to Buckingham Palace today by the Chinese Minister and Mr. Archibald Rose of the British Commercial Diplomatic Service.

Their Majesties received their distinguished visitor very graciously and cordially, and accepted the valuable and beautiful gifts from the President which he tendered.

It is understood that their Majesties will make return gifts to the President, and that the King will also send a letter acknowledging the President's letter.

Chu Chi-chien today visited the Foreign Office, where he saw Sir Eyre Crowe (Permanent Under-Secretary) in the absence of Lord Curzon, who was engaged in the Supreme Council. He then attended the Government luncheon in his honor at the Carlton Hotel. Here Mr. Shortt (Home Secretary) presided. Dr. Wellington Koo, Sir Charles Addis, Mr. Archibald Rose and other distinguished persons were present.

Mr. Shortt, in proposing the toast of Our Guest, paid a tribute to Chu Chi-chien's great services to China, and said His Majesty's Government would do everything in its power to help him in his mission.

Speaking in reply, Chu Chi-chien dealt with the problems of China, and especially referred to the development of commerce and industry, in which connexion he expressed his gratification at hearing that the British were ready to place at the disposal of China the essential scientific knowledge and technical skill. He warmly acknowledged the helpfulness of the British engineers and experts already engaged by the Chinese Government, and emphasised that the Chinese fully shared the desire of the British Government to foster the friendliest relations between Great Britain and China.

detailed plan, which is highly technical, tomorrow.

It is understood tonight that the Supreme Council's terms are framed on the following principles:

Germany to acknowledge her obligation to pay £6,600,000,000 by issuing bonds now and henceforth, in accordance with her ability to pay, paying interest at 5 percent.

£200,000,000 ANNUALLY

Germany is required to pay £100,000,000 annually and a 25 percent, export tax, and when these payments exceed the interest requirements on the bonds issued, the Reparations Commission will be entitled to require the issue of further bonds to absorb the surplus.

New York, May 2.—The Associated Press correspondent at Mayence telegraphs that a Division of French cavalry, commanded by General Simon, left tonight for the Ruhr in 15 trains.

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, May 2.—The officials of the State Department have been marking time pending the final developments from the discussions of the Supreme Council. It is reiterated that the United States stands with the Allies in holding Germany responsible to the extent of her full ability to pay, but that any plan that would unduly restrict her economic recuperation is considered unwise.

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, May 2.—A conference on public health conducted by Dr. W. W. Peter of the China Health Council and under the auspicees of the local Y.M.C.A. has just closed here. The purpose of the conference was to unite the leaders of the city, including especially the doctors, in a city wide health program. There are altogether between ninety and one hundred modern trained doctors in Hangchow and of these sixty were present at the banquet—the most representative gathering of the profession ever held in Hangchow. Goodfellowship prevailed at the dinner and steps were taken looking forward to a permanent public health organisation in Hangchow. The following men were elected at this meeting to act as an organisation committee and to enlist not only physicians but all interested citizens in the movement: Dr. K. C. NOTED LEADERS IN EDUCATIONAL WORK COMING

Commission Headed By University Of Chicago Head, Due In Fall

The coming of a deputation composed of internationally famous educators was announced by Dr. F. D. Gamewell yesterday before a meeting of the China Christian Educational Association Advisory Council, which is holding a two days' convention at the China Inland Mission Hall.

The commission, which is to arrive in September, will consist of Dr. E. D. Burton of Chicago University, Professor Roxby of Liverpool, and four other members whom they are to invite. Associated with them in their investigations will be a local committee of at least six, three of whom are to be Chinese. The group will study missionary educational work throughout China, concentrating in eight or ten large centers, and will return to Shanghai after about six months to render a final report. The deputation has been invited by practically all the Protestant mission boards of Great Britain and the United States.

DR. POTT SPEAKS

The convention opened yesterday morning with the election of Mr. E. H. Cressy of Hangchow as recording secretary and the appointment of numerous committees. Dr. F. L. Hawks Pott of St. John's University, president of the Association, then gave an address on the accomplishments and ideals of Christian education in China, after which Dr. Gamewell presented his report as general secretary. Following a brief devotional service led by Rev. A. Norman Rowland. Mr. Milton Stauffer addressed the convention on some salient points which an educational survey of China has revealed.

During the afternoon session, Dr. Ida Belle Lewis reported for the West China Christian Educational Union; Rev. J. W. Crofoot for the East China Association and Mr. H. B. Graybill for the Kwangtung Association.

ADDRESS BY DR. HUBBARD

The chief address of the afternoon was delivered by Dr. George D. Hubbard, who took as his topic "Geography as a Cultural Subject." The physical aspects of a country are so closely connected with its language, architecture, commerce, social life and religion, the speaker declared, that a study of it is essential for understanding the development of civilisation. Their environment in the frozen north has led the Eskimos to make their hell a cold place, just as the discomforts of heat in Palestine and South Europe caused early Christians to paint their hell a place of undue warmth. Dr. Hubbard also pointed out that all the monotheistic religions have developed in the same area and that geographical environment might conceivably have had something to do with the growth of this religious idea.

Before the close of the meeting Dr. Gamewell read a communication from the Ministry of Education at Peking, regretting that "educational conditions" in the North had made impossible the sending of a representative.

Today's program will consist of six more regional reports, devotional exercises led by Dr. Luther Freeman, a lecture on "Health Education" by Dr. W. W. Peter, a talk on "The Promotion of Chinese Phonetic Script" by Miss S. J. Garland, and various items of business. The morning session will open at nine o'clock and the afternoon session at 2:00 p.m.

A baby welfare exhibit and a collection of model schoolbooks are being shown in connection with the meetings.

during a bridge game and the kindly looks that are exchanged among the players," papa remarked. "I am also fond of the lady who holds a coroner's inquest over every hand and digs back 13 tricks to call you to time for not having led the fourth best of your strongest suit. The only time I'm happy playing bridge is when I'm the dummy."

"That's because you feel so natural," said mama.

Papa started to say something, but began to whistle "Kiss Me Again" and went out to office.

"Oh, they were fine," said Auntie. "I saw the cutest duvtyn dress cut Directoire, and a perfectly stunning lavender raincoat with a white rubber flower on the hat."

"But who won the races?" asked papa.

"Oh, a lot of horses," said Auntie, pulling out hat-pin. "I don't know their names."

Papa said that if Auntie went to an execution, she probably wouldn't know if the man was being shot for stealing jade or for passing another automobile on Nanking Road.

TROOPS REFUSE TO BUY TICKETS; RIOT RESULTS

Kiangsu Tuchun's Forces Want Free Show; Four Are Arrested

Troops of Chi Shih-yuan, Tuchun of Kiangsu, bombarded the Pei Lee Theater, Hsiakwan, Nanking, with tea cups and stones on Sunday, following the enforcement of the requirement by the theater management for tickets. Chi's troops, it is said, had been in the habit of going to shows and public places without paying for the admission fee. When the new requirement was made, about 40 soldiers thronged into the theater on Sunday and looked for trouble.

They first purchased their tickets. After a while they went to the box office to return them under the pretext that the show was no good and that they wished to have their money back. When told that no theater ever refunds any money except where the principal artist fails to perform, the soldiers started the rumpus.

The management immediately telephoned for the military police and four of the culprits were arrested.

Tuchun Chi has four divisions in Kiangsu, represented by about 40,000 troops. He spends $11,000,000 annually for the maintenance of these men. The discipline, or the lack of it, is demonstrated by the frequent disturbances created by these troops in the heart of the provincial capital.

RADIUM IS CURING BRITISH OF CANCER

Disease Reported To Have Disappeared Among Aged Persons After Treatment

London, March 19.—The Medical Research Council is experimenting extensively with radium treatment for the cure of cancer, and the work has been intensified by an increase in fatalities from cancer in England. The latest reports show that the three greatest enemies of mankind in London are bronchitis, cancer and tuberculosis, in the order named, with the last two running close together. The first heading includes influenza and other complaints resulting from bronchitis, so that the greatest perils are cancer and tuberculosis.

Dr. Addison, Government Health Commissioner, added, however, that cancer is a disease of middle and old age. He said the average age of the population is increasing; therefore there are more people who escape the diseases of childhood and live to the age when cancer attacks, and for that reason there are relatively more deaths from this disease. He asserted that a huge amount of preventive work had been done and was being done. Last year 42,000 died in England and Wales from cancer.

Sir Alfred Pierce Gould, an eminent surgeon, has had much success recently in treating cancer with radium. A woman of 85 had cancer of the breast for four years. A tube of radium was introduced into the breast and after a time the cancer disappeared. Another patient of 78 was likewise cured within a few months. A man of 76 who had cancer in the mouth underwent radium treatment for three months, after which the cancer disappeared.

Sir Alfred is a firm believer in radium treatment, but admits that there is much about cancer still to be learned. He declared that he had cases where incomplete and apparently useless operations had a surprising effect in getting rid of cancer, and at times when temporary measures had been taken astounding relief resulted. He says that this proves that further light is necessary before the treatment can advance. He does not believe that the new cure has yet received a fair test, because it usually has been applied only to advanced cases where the general condition of the patient rendered an operation unnecessary. In his opinion the remedy ought to be thoroughly tried on early and average cases, and he has high hopes that it will ultimately be a great medical triumph in the treatment of a baffling disease.

Poe's 'Bells' Rendered Back From Russian

Liverpool Philharmonics Give Impressive Performance Of Famous Poem

Liverpool, March 19.—The Liverpool Philharmonic Society this week produced Rachmaninoff's setting of Edgar Allan Poe's "The Bells." The text of "The Bells" drifted to Russia, had been translated there and the music had been set to the Russian version. This presented the initial difficulty of rendering back the vocal parts into English conformable to the Russian music. But the task was creditably accomplished, and under the skillful baton of Sir Henry Wood, Liverpool's vocalists and instrumentalists gave an impressive performance.

The retranslation, however lost the effect of the exquisitely drawn shadings in the word painting which is the soul of the American poet's verses. Rachmaninoff's work, which is one of his most recent, is dedicated to Mengelberg and his Amsterdam orchestra. As might be supposed, the vocal parts are merely subsidiary to the orchestral effects which the composer envisaged. He has, nevertheless, followed the general scheme of the poem with four symphonic movements.

The first is the sleigh bells, with the tenor leading the chorus in comment upon the tinkling orchestral effects. The second is the wedding bell movement, slow and dreamy, with the soprano leading the choral common and affording a pleasant interlude between the first movement and the frantic scherzo of the third with its fire bells. This third choir is without a real solo, but gets a chance at choral perfection with the scherzo orchestration. The fourth movement, representing the funeral bells, is a beautifully constructed orchestral dirge, broken by an allegro passage representing the spirit of the belfry, after which a return to the dirge makes a quiet and impressive ending.

Mr. Pim Passes By

When the curtain went up at the Lyceum last evening there was disclosed the morning room at Marden House, Buckinghamshire, on a sunny morning in July. Time—The Present, and for over two hours we had the fragrant country house life of England brought to us by cultured and refined Englishmen and Englishwomen.

It is not the least use trying to tell the story of the play itself because it was a gossamer thread of misunderstandings interwoven with the love story of a middle aged English country squire and his wife, and a brilliant young artist and the maid he is wooing.

It was entirely a matter of presentation, and we in the audience felt that we too were a part of the happy family.

Dear little Mr. Carraway Pim, a bent little old gentleman with hornrimmed spectacles and a bird-like little voice, very precise, very prim, very courteous, was the perfectly innocent cause of all the misunderstanding, though the other delightful folks blamed him—for the life of me I couldn't see why?

They were all so absorbed in their own happiness that it never occurred to any of them to put a few obvious business like questions to little Mr. Pim. And a good thing too, for if they had the play would only have lasted one act, whereas it lasted three (and I should have liked three more!)

Mr. Christian Morrow was Mr. Carraway Pim, but for all I know Mr. Pim may have been Mr. Morrow, their identities were so merged. I can only repeat "dear little Mr. Pim," and thank you for "passing by" Shanghai and looking in on us!

The English country gentleman, George Marden, J.P., of Mr. Chas. Quartermaine, deeply in love with his wife Olivia (Miss Jeannette Sherwin) whose first impulse on the threatened disaster to his homelife was "to have these things legally settled" was true to type.

Alas, in these days, so many clean living honest true, but hidebound-by-convention, men of this precise type are mourning the loss of gallant boys who would have carried on the race—and type.

One feels a diffidence in writing of real live London West End actors and actresses, for that is what Mr. Waring and his player comrades are, artistes to their finger tips, cultured, refined men and women.

Dinah, the Squire's Ward and niece (Miss Edith Smith) and Brian Strange her handsome artist lover (Mr. H. B. Waring) were the young lovers in whom we all took the greatest interest.

The Lady Marden of Miss May Hallatt was the English County personage to type, but I feel quite sure that Miss Hallatt in private life is by no means formidable and severe but as charming as her comrades.

I want to write a lot about the actual setting of the stage but there is not time—but have we never in Shanghai seen details of ornament on our stage to the extent of real old English Dixon pewter?

That is what Mr. Waring brings to us.

We have had eminent London actors and actresses here before, but we have never had a so absolutely genuine and refined and all-round brilliant Company as the H. B. Waring's.

My own feeling is to simply thank these delightful people for affording me the most delightful evening's entertainment I have ever had in the Far East.

The quicker all of us pass the word round to our friends the better for us, because if we care for the theater at all we simply cannot afford to miss the pleasure the Warings give.

I have not said much about Miss Sherwin's Olivia, because Dinah has a line that says it so much better—

"You must see Olivia,
Oh! She is simply devastating!"
And so she is!
Tonight they are doing Shakespeare—
"Merchant of Venice."

CHAMPIONS TO RUN TODAY; OLD BILL, SILVER STREAK AND THE HAWK FAVORITES

Half Moon Bay Winner Yesterday Of The Derby Held To Be Most Likely Candidate Among The Griffins That Will Start

The Champion Sweepstakes, the big event of the Shanghai Race Club's Spring Meeting, will be run about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. It is the ninth of the card of 11 events and the list of numbers drawn in the sweepstake will be posted just before the eighth race is run. The Champions event this season carries with it the biggest prize in the history of racing in Shanghai as the number of tickets sold passed the 35,000 mark yesterday and it probably will go over 40,000 today.

Weather indications for the day of the big race were fairly favorable last night. Though it seemed too hopeful to look for sunshine, it is thought that the rain will hold off and this doubtless will mean a record crowd with faster going on the track.

IS OPEN RACE

Whether victory in the big race will fall to a griffin or to one of the veteran ponies was a question of some little doubt among racing men last night, although the long favorites, of course, are the old-timers.

If the expressions of riders, owners and others who have followed the events of the past two days most closely may be accepted, victory in the big race will go to Old Bill, to Silver Streak or to The Hawk. About twenty ponies will start in the contest.

In the list of second choice favorites for the race are several highly likely candidates among the veterans, among them Shenkoland and The Curlew.

HALF MOON BAY FAVORITE

Of the griffins Half Moon Bay, winner of the Derby yesterday, is regarded as a more than likely candidate for the big race. Others held in high favor include Kempston, Blazing Corn, Victoria, Zaandam and Stancliffe.

Messrs. C. and H. White's Kings Cross, which in the closing days of the spring training ranked as a long favorite for the race, failed to qualify in the mud of the first two days of the meeting. It was stated last night that the pony will not be started today which means that it will not compete in the big race.

After a morning of rainfall another unexpectedly big crowd turned out in the afternoon and then the weather man relented. Though the skies remained overcast the rain stopped and slowly, very slowly, conditions on the course began to improve. After the Hawk had won the opening race of the day in accordance with expectations and the pony Ajax had finished first in the second event 13 starters took the track for the day's big race, The Derby. In precisely the order reckoned by pari-mutuel ticket buyers on the race, Half Moon Bay, Golden Rod and Kempston finished in the order given. It was an easy victory for the favorite.

From this on, despite the hard going of a roughened muddy course, the favorites ran closely to form and dividends were desperately meagre up to the final events of the card. The first upset came in the eigth race when Mr. R. W. Wingrove's roan One-of-Them finished first and paid a price of $146.

The tenth race, The Tientsin Plate in which were 19 starters brought the real surprise of the day. The Heron was the long favorite with Fighting King as second choice.

Co-insurance won the race with Tyneside in second place and the dividend for win ran to $145. Fighting King was able only to show.

CHINAN MAN IS STAR AT GAMES HELD IN NANKING

Kuo Jumps 5 Feet 8 Inches, Then Wins Broad Jump And Half Mile

The Nanking City Athletic Meet, run by the University and the Teachers College of Nanking, at the latter's grounds, last Saturday, was a great success. The day was ideal, the track was in perfect condition, and a large number of athletes took part, not only from the University and the College, but also from the other schools in the city. Several good records were made by men who will try for the Far Eastern Games this May.

The highest individual score was made by Kuo, of Chinan Institute, who won the high jump at 5 ft. 8 in. and then won the half mile and broad jump. Closely following him were Tsian, of Teachers College, and Tsu, of the University, with 13 points each, the former winning the pole vault at 10 ft. 2 in. and the high hurdles and getting second in the broad jump, while the latter set a fast pace by winning the 100 and 220 yard dashes, losing the 440 by only three inches. Ching of Teachers College was fourth with 12 points, pluckily recovering from his fall over the last high hurdle, and taking second place in the event.

This city meet is to be an annual event promoted by the two higher institutions of the city, alternately on each field. A surprise was furnished by Chinan Institute taking such a close third place. The final score was Teachers College 59 points, University 27, Chinan Institute 23, Physical Education Normal School 4, First Provincial Agricultural School 4.

The summary of the meet is as follows:

Scottish Four Is Best; American Crews May Show Better At Regatta

(BY STROKE)

To try to criticise the American squad at the present is a hard job. Probably the worst that can be said about them is that they are a fairly willing crowd of oarsmen if each one can have his own way. There is ample material and most of it is good, as good as we have ever had but they do not seem to pull together in combinations. Many of the men now out have rowed on college crews at home and are not likely to get over nervous in a race but unless there can be some spirit of get together in the boat we might as well not go up to Henli at the regatta.

There are the usual number of faults, such as rushing the slide on the recovery, finishing the leg drive before the arms, fighting the oar at the finish and rowing too deep during the stroke. These are elementary faults but ones from which even the old oar is never immune. Any man in the boat developing one of the above faults during a practice can so upset a boat that it will render the practice practically useless and discourage the rest of the men in the boat. These four faults affect the actual running of the boat and there are four others that affect the life of the boat.

AND FOUR OTHERS

The first of these is a lazy catch. If the oarsman does not get his oar in with the others and give all the pull he can at the catch it throws the work on the other men and will in time play them out while he goes along as a passenger. This may be done intentionally or unintentionally.

The second is in the way he pulls his oar out at the finish of the stroke. The oar should be carried through in a straight line and the hands dropped down with a quick clean movement but the usual way is to pull the oar down into the lap and bringing out the blade gradually which wastes the last part of the stroke and is known as washing out. This usually throws a spray at the end of the stroke and not only looks bad but cuts down the power of the boat.

The third fault is to get the hands back slowly after the blade is out of the water. After the blade leaves the water it should be shot back till the hands are over the knees with all the force it is possible to use and get the greater part of the recovery when the boat has the most momentum. Getting the hands out slowly like being slow on the catch makes a sloppy boat and the man who is doing it right is the one who gets the burden of the work.

The fourth fault is diving at the catch. If the oarsman is in position for the catch he will take the last part of his recovery much slower than the first and drop naturally into his place at the catch but if he is slow in getting his oar out and slow with his hands he has to make a quick motion at the catch in order to get a stroke of decent length and this sudden shifting of his weight when the boat has the least momentum causes the boat to stop or check.

SCOTS' FOUR BEST

The Scottish four is by all odds the best and should at the present be considered the most likely for first place under ordinary conditions. Several other fours show very good form and are improving every day so that the regatta promises to be a very interesting one.

The American boats are not showing such form at the present time but they have plenty of power and with lots of hard work and coaching they will give the others a run for it on the day of the race.

If they can develop more of the get together spirit and put some snap into their work they have a good chance to win in most of the races they go into but if they row like the eight that went out Sunday they have a fine chance for last place.

NON-STUDENTS TO BE SELECTED FOR FAR EAST GAMES

Entries For Them To Remain Open Until Wednesday, May Eleventh

The Contest Committee of the Far Eastern Championships is working in close co-operation with the East China Intercollegiate Athletic Association in connection with the Intercollegiate Championships which are to take place in Soochow on Saturday, May 14.

As previously announced, events will be opened to non-students desiring to try out for the Far Eastern Championships, and in order to facilitate matters, the Contest Committee is appointing a selecting Committee which will be present during the contests, and which will sit immediately following the games and draw up a list of recommendations of those athletes who might reasonably represent China from this area.

It is therefore very important that all non-students, who can, be present at that time. Entries for the East China Intercollegiates will close on Saturday, May 7, but entries for non-students will be held open until Wednesday, the 11th. Entries may be sent either to Dr. R. D. Smart, Soochow University, or to the Honorary Secretary, Contest Committee, 20 Museum Road.

SHANGHAI BOY BOXERS SHOW EXCELLENT FORM IN OPENING NIGHT OF BIG TOURNAMENT

E. Siemsen Knocks Out Seaman March In Third Round Of Classy Match: Main Event Goes To A. F. Wilson. Tonight Last Night

Eddie Siemsen, the 16-year-old Shanghai School boy member of the Shanghai Boxing Club won his six round bout last night at the Town Hall over Seaman March of the British Cruiser Carlisle, by the K. O. route. And four of a total of five Shanghai boys pitted against outsiders were returned victors. It was a great night for Shanghai, and for the Boxing Club.

Eight events comprised the card. There were bouts at every weight, from 70 lbs. midgets up to 154 lbs. middleweights. And every bout was cleanly contested for; every decision was fairly earned. The boys were for the most part evenly matched, and the boxing, in consequence held the interest of the packed hall.

Siemsen's win over March came after the best bit of boxing seen in Shanghai for many years. Siemsen is a truly clever boy. He was master of himself throughout his short bout. He made every movement count; he never started a blow that didn't land just where he intended it should. His judging of time and distances were absolutely accurate.

The knockout was delivered so quickly that many did not know it had been sent over until they saw March spread out on the floor and Referee Lewellyn Jones counting over him. The men were milling fast and roughly in the third round. March was rushing in and out; Siemsen was meeting him, placing a telling blow through every opening. The pair sparred just beyond reach during a lull, when Siemsen sent a crashing left in just below the heart and before March could recover, right-crossed to the jaw.

The impact of the blow was sharp and clear. Everyone heard it. Its effect was oblivion for March. At the beginning of the count of ten, there was great cheering and calling for March to get up. He must have heard. He arose to one elbow, but rolled over again, and was counted out.

Siemsen, proclaimed victor, went to his dressing room, and immediately showed that he was in distress since receiving a body blow during the early stages of the third. He became seasick and for precaution he was sent to the hospital for observation. He recovered later however and proceeded home.

MAIN BOUT TO WILSON

The main bout of the evening went to A. F. Wilson of the Shanghai Boxing Club, after eight rounds of hard milling with Seaman York of the Carlisle. Wilson had the advantage throughout. He placed more telling blows than York, and suffered very little in the way of return.

Last night's tournament was under the auspices of the Shanghai Boxing Club. Drs. W. S. Parsons and O'Hara acted as judges, Mr. Llewellyn Jones as referee, and Mr. F. Jones timekeeper. Boy Scouts acted as ushers.

Tonight the boxing tournament will be continued with eight events, the chief of which will be the special attraction of the two-day meet. R. B. Martin of the Shanghai Boxing Club will be matched with Seaman Bowbidge of the Carlisle. Bowbidge was formerly middle weight champion

On Making Sure

There is nothing like making sure where one's health is concerned. Good health is the best guarantee that Life shall be a success. Now it is well-known that digestive disorders are the cause of more cases of ill-health than any other class of ailment. The digestive system is so extensive, so complex and so hard-worked, that its liability to derangement is not astonishing. Happily, however, many digestive ailments can be easily remedied. Happily, too, many digestions need never go wrong. You can make reasonably sure that your digestion will not fail you, even under trying conditions, if you get into the excellent way of taking Beecham's Pills. This "Wonderful Medicine"—as it has been called—does really work wonders with the digestive system. Beecham's Pills impart tone to the stomach, regulate the action of the liver and kidneys and gently stimulate the bowels into healthy activity. Get into the habit of making sure. Have recourse to Beecham's Pills at the first sign of digestive trouble. Make sure of your health by taking of the British Mediterranean fleet in 1919-20.

The fight will go ten rounds.

The summary of bouts follows:

M. HERZBERG vs. LANDAU

The first bout was a four-round go between M. Herzberg of the Shanghai Boxing Club and E. Landau of the Shanghai Public School, at 112 lbs.

The boys went at it at the first bell. Herzberg had his man outclassed and outfought before the first minute had passed. One good jab to the chin floored Landau and he finished out the round stalling.

Both boys were tired in the second, and they fought more carefully. Landau gathered strength and confidence as the bout progressed. He worked a right swing with fair effect, but Herzberg, with his quicker footwork and sharper boxing held his advantage to the finish.

The judges' decision in favor of Herzberg met with unanimous approval.

MARCH vs. SIEMSEN

Seaman March of the British cruiser Carlisle and E. Siemsen of the Shanghai Boxing Club, at 145 lbs. gave the best exhibition of boxing of the evening. The go was scheduled for six rounds but ended in a knock-out win for Siemsen in the third. The blow that ended the bout was a right cross to the jaw.

The men felt each other out during the first round, and some really clever flashes of boxing were shown. Siemsen never wasted a movement. Every punch he started landed as he intended. The sailor was inclined to rush, but Siemsen met him with strong right jabs and often had him on the ropes.

The second round brought some fast mixing, with March trying yet to rush the milling. Siemsen sent a jab to March's jaw that floored him. The sparring was more careful after that.

In the third round, with the milling going fast March gave the watched-for opening and Siemsen as quick as the eye could follow, slipped in a crashing left under the heart and followed with a sharp right cross to the chin. March collapsed. He made a brave attempt to rise during the count. When "seven" was called he rose on one elbow, but unequal to the demand, he fell over, and took the full count. After a little sponging he was able to walk out to his dressing room.

BEESLEY vs. H. HERZBERG

Two fly-weights, each weighing 70 lbs, T. Beesley and H. Herzberg, of the Shanghai Public School, boxed six fast and clever rounds in the third event. Beesley, the taller of the pair showed to better advantage by reason of his greater reach, and the judges gave their decision to him. Herzberg for his game showing will receive a handsome prize from the Boxing Club.

JOHANSSEN vs. LE MARINEL

A pair of feather weights, at 124 lbs., J. Johanssen of the Shanghai Boxing Club and Seaman Le Marinel of the Carlisle went through six rounds of fast boxing in the fourth event.

The seaman went right to the schoolboy with a crouch and a bunch of short jabs which he tried to work at close range. He was cautioned however to keep the fight open, and, later against holding in the breakaways.

Le Marinel fought a rushing, cover-up fight, and Johanssen had difficulty in breaking through his cover. He did nearly all of the real punching, and in the third round had the seaman straightened out a little, and was landing some very effective blows.

Le Marinel merely rushed, backed away, and hid himself under his mits. He didn't land one clean blow throughout the bout. The decision was for the schoolboy.

DIETRICH vs. PINKHAM

M. Dietrich and P. Pinkham at 80 lbs. both of the Shanghai Public School, went four rounds of fast hard boxing. Dietrich was the aggressor throughout, and often forced his opponent into a saving clinch. Pinkham however was willing throughout, and gave considerable back-fighting. The decision of draw was considered a fair one.

KID ROTH vs. DEALY

Kid Roth of Shanghai, volunteered to take Toledo's place against Seaman Dealy when Toledo was reported sick and unable to go on in the sixth event. The weights were at 140 lbs. The bout ran six rounds.

The men boxed hard and fast from the opening gong. Roth looked like a fighter. He was on Dealy at the opening of the second round before the latter was well out of his chair. But Dealy too was in the fight every minute.

Little damage was done by either man though Roth appeared the stronger and possessed of more ring craft and at times he had Dealy bothered.

In the sixth Dealy was laying into clinches at every opportunity, tired by the heavy milling.

The decision went to Roth.

YOUNG vs. EVANS

A furious bout was put on between Boy Young of the Shanghai Public School and Boy Evans of the Carlisle for the seventh event. The weights were at 112 lbs.

Evans forced the pace from the opening and when Young sought to cover up he was beaten out of his crouch and made to stand up and take some more.

Young showed evidences of training, but Evans had too many fighting qualities and too much bull-dog persistence for him. At the end of the second round the fight was stopped.

Young will be given a consolation prize by the Boxing Club for his showing.

WILSON vs. YORK

The main bout of the evening an eight-round go between middleweights, A. F. Wilson of the Shanghai Boxing Club and Seaman York of the Carlisle was a nice exhibition of serious boxing. Honors were almost even, with the shade to Wilson, to whom was given the decision.

The bout opened with keen open boxing, and York feeling around with some good footwork and covering up tightly when pressed. Wilson had the greater reach, and he used it, when occasion offered, to good advantage.

The second round saw both men sparring carefully. York had straightened up a trifle and appeared more willing to try conclusions. No damage, however, was done by either man.

In the third Wilson found many openings for both hands to face and scored some telling blows. York was willing enough but Wilson always beat him to the punch after the preliminary sparring.

The fourth was a repetition of the third, as was the fifth, and sixth. York was trying hard to land an uppercut, and ran into many vicious blows during the passages. He did however place several left jabs to the face.

Wilson also had a haymaking uppercut posed and he swung it often, but York's fast footwork took him out of serious danger.

The last round saw both men ready for any opening, but the bout closed with nothing further than anxious sparring transpiring.

AMERICANS AND AUSTRALIANS ON ENGLISH FIELDS

Sport In Great Britain This Summer Is International; Tennis Results

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 2.—Sport in Great Britain this summer has a strong international flavor. Besides the Australian cricketers and the American polo team, a crowd of American golfers are arriving to compete in the amateur and professional championships, and the stream of lawn tennis players from abroad continues.

The latest achievement of the American invaders is in the final round of the amateur tennis—i. e. royal tennis, not lawn tennis—championship at Queen's Club, wherein Cutting beat C. N. Bruce, 6-3, 6-4, 3-4. The winner will meet Baerlein, the holder, on Wednesday.

Australians Win First Cricket Game

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 2.—In fine weather, and before an attendance numbering some 6,000, the Australians resumed their first innings in their match against Leicestershire which opened at Leicester on Saturday.

Bardsley and Macartney brought their scores up to 109 and 177 respectively, the latter in a sparkling all-round display hitting 20 boundaries. When the score stood at 430 for seven wickets (Gregory contributing 78) the Australians declared their innings closed.

Leicestershire in their second innings scored 142, Sharp topping the individual scores with 56. The Australians thus won by an innings and 152 runs. Scores:

Leicestershire, 1st inns., 136.

Australians, 1st inns., 430 for 7 wickets: declared.

Leicestershire, 2nd inns., 142.

GraphomaniaDefined By A French Savant

Bergson Describes Several Forms Of The Obsession For Getting Into Print

Paris, March 20.—Graphomania is a disease which manifests itself by an inordinate desire to write and to attach exaggerated importance to that which one writes. In a communication to the French Academy M. Bergson, the well-known savant, describes this mania and speculates on how widespread it really is.

"The graphomaniac," he says, "is a man who is a prey to the irresistible need of writing. It is an impulse, obsession, passion—it matters little the word we use to describe it. It is the fixity of the desire to which during the time of the affection almost excludes all other endeavor.

"In the literary form of this disease the subject copies and reproduces every thought which comes to him. Probably he once produced original work, but when he gets this disease he cannot produce original work, yet nevertheless continues to write and write. The worse his writings get the greater grows his opinion of his writings. He becomes convinced that humanity demands the publication of his works. His dream is to fix upon himself the attention of the public. His happiness is to read his name everywhere. He undertakes to persuade critics to think well of him when they cannot.

"The disease may take other forms, as, for instance, the desire to write one's name. The subject writes his name everywhere he can put it, on books, trees, walls, benches, everywhere. There is also epistolary graphomania, when the subject has an irresistible passion to write letters, sending them to persons he scarcely knows, and even writing to himself."

Says America Must Prepare Huge Army

Gen. Renaud Prophesies Attack On France By Germany And Russia

Paris, March 20.—The United States must be ready to rush 4,000,000 troops to France when the Germans and Russians attack, is the warning of General Renaud, professor in the Superior War School, to the newspapers today.

The occupation of the Rhine district does not protect France, General Renaud says, because hordes of Russians could wipe out the bridgeheads on the right bank of the Rhine, despite losses, while the Germans could cross Holland or Switzerland and attack the Allies in the rear.

General Renaud makes the first official admission that the Germans inflicted heavier losses on the Allies on the west front than they sustained, saying the Germans lost 2,000,000 men, the same number as the French; Great Britain lost 600,000; Belgium, 25,000; America, 55,000; Russian, Portuguese and Italian Allies 25,000 making a total of 2,705,000 Allies on the French front alone. Thus General Joffre's statement, that "This is a war of attrition," is exploded, as the Germans inflicted heavier losses throughout than the Allies.

"Counting the losses inflicted on the Russians, Serbs, Italians and Rumanians on other fronts," he says, "the Germans killed three allied soldiers for every German killed."

The German success in slaughtering Allies, General Renaud says, was due to three causes:

Better instruction methods, superior armament and more judicious employment of troops. He then demands that France reorganise its army to obtain similar superiority and "to give America time to intervene again and save the world's liberty."

Mission Of Healing Begins At Cathedral On Monday

It has already been announced that the Mission of Healing to be conducted by Mr. Hickson will begin in the Cathedral on Monday next. And before the arrangements are here detailed possibly some readers who do not yet know will be interested to hear something about him. He is a member of the Church of England, and has in many parts of the world held missions of healing. His work of healing has been a great blessing to very many sick and suffering people in India, America, and Canada and England.

The writer has letters of recommendation from Bishops of the churches in those countries, which guarantee beyond any possibility of doubt that Mr. Hickson has the gift of God which enables him to heal cases of physical and spiritual disease. He wishes it to be clearly understood that he teaches and believes that this gift is from God and that as he finds he has this gift he desires to use it for God's glory and the benefit of his fellow-men. It should be said also that he does not in any way usurp the function of medicine and surgery, for he regards these also as God's gifts and works in co-operation with them, but he claims that there is a spiritual vitality in man's composite being which can be and is so energised that it does have remarkable results on the physical side of nature. To anyone who contemplates his own triune composition, this should not cause very great surprise.

There is however a need of co-operation on the part of man, and what is needed is faith and prayer on the part of the sick and also of their friends. For even Christ Himself declared that He do no mighty works in places where there was an atmosphere of unbelief and scepticism. Therefore Mr. Hickson lays great stress on the importance of preparation, that the soil of men's hearts may be ready for the seed of Divine healing. This preparation should enable us to rid ourselves of any desire to put up test cases, and to approve or condemn accordingly. Mr. Hickson, however, thinks that all cases of disease can be cured where there is sufficient faith, either corporate or individual. It is no undue call upon the faith and love of any honest Christian to contribute all he can of prayer and faith and love to a common fund, if that is the requisite condition under which a diseased man woman or child can be healed and restored to harmony of spirit, mind, or body. And this especially so when he has realised that God quite manifestly hates disease and suffering, as much as we do.

The arrangements for the days of preparation are as follows:

(1) On Wednesday evening at 5:30 p.m. there will be a short special service of intercession. To this all men and women of any creed or denomination are invited. The need of united and corporate prayer is obvious.

(2) At all the services on Thursday — Ascension Day — the main thought in our prayer and worship will be that in this ministry the Will of God may be done, and that our wills may be brought into line with His, and offered unreservedly for His use. The services will be:—7 a.m. and 8 a.m. Holy Communion; 11 a.m. Choral Eucharist; 5:30 p.m. Evensong (sung) with Address and special intersessions.

(3) On Friday and Saturday throughout the day there will be continuous intercession in the Cathedral. It is a very great joy to be able to say that the list of Intercessors is now practically full. The days have been divided into half-hours and there are only one or two periods which no intercessor has undertaken. On each of those days there will be a special evening service of prayer at 5:30 p.m.

(4) Literature can be taken from the end of the Cathedral, but as Mr. Hickson charges no fees and has expenses, this should be paid for. If application is made to The Rev. C. E. Spencer, The Deanery, a certain amount of literature can be sent.

Arrangements for the Mission are as follows:

(1) Healing services will be held from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. though this time may be exceeded.

(2) Admission can only be obtained by ticket which must be surrendered at the door. There will be white tickets for the sick; blue for intercessors, and yellow for others. Each ticket will be dated and will only admit for one day. On the blue tickets the names of both intercessors and the sick should be written. On the white tickets the nature of the disease must be given, and this is of course in any case confidential.

(3) Entrance will be by one door only, and this will be closed immediately the service begins. Mr. Hickson specially requires that no one will leave the Cathedral till the service is over.

(4) The Sub-Dean will be glad to make any special arrangements that are necessary, and are possible to make, for the convenience of the sick.

(5) The tickets will be obtainable at the entrance of the Cathedral at any time; and in certain cases if application be made to the Sub-Dean, Rev. C. E. Spencer at the Deanery, they can be sent by post.

American Woman's Club Notes

A contrast between the old and new ideals of Chinese home life was brought out in talks by Mrs. C. C. Chen and Dr. Mary Stone, given yesterday afternoon before a meeting of the American Woman's Club under the auspices of the Mothers' Department.

Introduced by Mrs. W. G. Hiltner, chairman of the department, Mrs. Chen described the long-respected custom of grouping large families under one roof and the imperative demand for an heir that has made polygamy conventional.

"Most Chinese are very proud of having parents and brothers in one house," Mrs. Chen said. "In some ways, the family is very happy, and certainly the children have more comradeship than falls to the lot of a child in a smaller group. The Chinese boy is especially well off, his education and welfare always coming before that of the girls. He does not have to worry either about courting or supporting a wife, as both these problems are generally willingly shouldered by his family. In case no child is born, he may take a second wife without running counter to law or public opinion. In fact, he is expected to do so, though sometimes a couple may atone for their childlessness in other ways. If only one of four brothers has a son, the other three may each supply a wife for him to represent their branches of the family."

Dissatisfaction with the old system developed when young and observant students began to note the different type of home-life enjoyed by Christian missionaries, the speaker said. They began to demand the right to choose their life-partners, and the privilege of education for the women, and a home of their own separate from that of older members of the family. Mrs. Chen described the Christian Home Club founded at Shanghai Baptist College, which stimulates in the students the desire to found homes after the best Western principles. Lectures are given by the faculty on the development of social pleasures in the home as a means of proving that it is not necessary for men to seek recreation in restaurants and theaters. Shanghai College also helps to raise scholarships for students who wish to send their wives to school, providing for them at a special institution for married women in Huchow.

In illustrating the old ideals of family life, Dr. Mary Stone described a family which Kiukiang tradition has endowed with many ideal characteristics. Three thousand men with their wives and children lived together in one great dwelling, which was so huge that the watchman rode on horseback from the front to the back gates. The family had one feature that would be highly approved by modern feminists —the wives took turns caring for the babies during the day, thus leaving the rest of the mothers free for other things. Socially and economically the community was entirely self-sufficient, having its own teachers, judges and craftsmen of all sorts, besides producing all its own goods. Tradition says that the family was so entirely amiable that even its dogs and cats did not fight, and that a Mandarin tested it out by giving a hundred cakes to them, which were consumed without a quarrel.

Dr. Stone added that as a physician, she was called into Chinese homes of all types, and that the happiest are those in which the man and wife are Christians. Not all features of Western life are to be imitated, she said, for there is sometimes in evidence a neglect of the aged that is very repugnant to Chinese and apartment house living has not contributed much to the science of making a happy home. But in the main, Dr. Stone declared, the Western plan has proved superior and has been adopted by thousands of educated Chinese. The Shanghai Woman's Club, of which Dr. Stone is president, has made a special effort to bring these ideals before the Chinese women of the city.

In a light and witty vein, Mrs. J. A. Ely of St. Mary's School sought to disprove the old theory that Chinese are not sentimental and to show the excellent material of which Chinese young women are made. As an example of their politeness she told of a young school girl who stated on an examination paper that women have more intuition than men, and then added as a side-note of apology to her man teacher, "So sorry, Mr. Sung."

Before the opening of the program, Mrs. Truman S. Holt, vice-president of the Manila Woman's Club, was introduced by Mrs. C. S. Lobingier and presented the greetings of that organisation.

PICNIC FOR SAILORS

The club is planning a picnic for American sailors, the date of which is to be announced after the meeting of the Social Service Department on Thursday. Each member is asked to provide a basket lunch for five sailors and to act as special hostess to them.

The next general meeting of the American Woman's Club will take place on May seventeenth and will be given over to the reports of the retiring officers.

MOTHERS' DEPARTMENT

The Mothers' Department of the American Woman's Club will meet this morning in the Royal Asiatic Society Hall to hear an address by Mrs. Guy C. Stockton on "Art Appreciation." Members and friends are asked to be on hand promptly at 10:30 so that the program may start without delay. Mrs. Stockton addressed the department on this topic before and her talk presented so many helpful suggestions that she was asked to develop her ideas further along this line. The lecture will be illustrated by colored slides.

Anfu Officials Seeking Revenge

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, April 30.—Measures are being taken by the Central Government to protect the lives of officials who are said in Shanghai to be threatened by bands of assassins. A Shanghai dispatch said that the former Anfu Leader, General Hsu Shu-cheng is now ready for his revenge and has organised his assassin bands to be sent as once to Peking and Tientsin. By assassination and by creating disturbances they are to create a panic in official circles it is said. While Government officials receive this message with reserve, they are taking no chances and it is said that the bands will find considerable difficulty in leaving Shanghai.

Shirley President Braces Move With the Body Action

Nearly all the machinery in the world is designed to eliminate friction.

The thought that first created SHIRLEY PRESIDENT BRACES was based on the same fundamental principle. That delicate piece of machinery, the human body, needed every help it could obtain to relieve it of friction and binding.

Carefully designed SHIRLEY PRESIDENT BRACES, with their hollow tubes mounted on swivels and cable cords that give and take with each movement, do just this.

NOTED SPEAKERS AT ANTI-OPIUM MEETING TO-DAY

Notables Of International Repute To Address Annual Gathering At Y.M.C.A.

The public is reminded that the International Anti-opium Association, which has been working with a view to bring about such legislation as will evventually make the traffic in opium and its derivatives impossible will hold its annual meeting this afternoon at 5.30 p.m. at the Y. M. C. A., 120 Szechuen Road.

Sir Everard Fraser, Consul-General for Great Britain; Judge Charles S. Lobingier, of the United States Court for China; Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese delegate at Versailles; Mr. Shen Hsinching of the Kiangsu Educational Association; Dr. R. S. Ivy and Mr. A. E. Blanco, a director of the Peking International Anti-Opium Association have been asked to address the meeting.

All public spirited members of the community are cordially invited to be present. In Shanghai, which has for so long been the scene of the drug traffic and from where so much can be done towards putting an end to the evil such a meeting should be packed with those who take an interest in China's welfare and who are striving for a clean Shanghai an official of the Association said yesterday.

The meeting is all the time more well timed because China's representative in Geneva is at this very moment pleading China's right to a freedom from importing of opium derivatives by foreigners.

POSTPONEMENT OF DATE FOR OPENING TENDERS

Upon the request of some of the bidders, we and the Ministry of Communications agree to postpone the date of opening the tenders for wagons and locomotives to be furnished to the Chinese Railways to 2 p.m., June 29th, 1921 instead of June 15th, 1921 as advertised previously in order to give the bidders more time to make careful estimates.

Drawings and specifications for the six locomotives of the English type for the Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo Railway are ready and may be obtained from the head office of the Chinese Banking Group upon payment of $10.00 (Chinese Currency). As these drawings and specifications are thirty sets in all, each bidder is limited to one set only.

We beg to inform the bidders that from April 12th, 1921, the drawings and specifications for the wagons and locomotives of the Prairie, Mikado and Pacific types are no more on sale.

An Early Annual Report

THE increased interest shown by many ratepayers in local affairs is evincing itself in the suggestion put forward at the last meeting of the Civic League, viz., that the complete annual report of the Municipal Council be published three weeks before the annual meeting. To those who perused the last report this suggestion will commend itself as reasonable and as a desirable proposition. It is another instance of an arrangement which worked very well twenty or thirty years ago being now antiquated and inadequate.

Presumably the idea of publishing the report before the annual meeting is that the ratepayers may attend that meeting, more or less understanding what is being done by the Council, and therefore in a position to discuss it intelligently. But the Council's activities have increased to such an extent that it is quite impossible to digest the document in the time at present allowed, so the report tends to become a record of the Council's doings rather than information supplied to the ratepayers to enable them to discuss the policy of the Council at the annual meeting.

Naturally this tends towards cut and dried procedure at the annual meeting, and cannot be satisfactory to the Councillors who are endeavoring to carry on the management of the Settlement to the satisfaction of the ratepayers, or to the ratepayers themselves, who feel they are kept in ignorance of many points on which they would wish to be well informed. It might be a very satisfactory arrangement for any permanent official who did not wish to be disturbed by an inquiry into his own special department, if we can conceive of such existing in the Model Settlement, but beyond that, it is not apparent that the arrangement can be considered satisfactory from any point of view. An earlier publication would tend to a much more intelligent comprehension of the work of the Council, and inevitably produce a stronger backing of their policy by the ratepayers when it was shown that that policy was dictated by common sense and judgment; whilst should they be following a policy of a different sort, the criticism which would be forthcoming would produce a discussion in which their policy would stand or fall on its merits.

In the case of the Budget, the weakness of the present arrangement is clearly seen, the short period available for the study of this vital and interesting document was totally inadequate on the last occasion of its issue. It has grown to such dimensions now, that it is no small task to dissect it and obtain a real grip of all the various items. When one considers that it is the ratepayers' money which is being handled and expended in large amounts, it is not surprising that many of them wish to have time to understand the Budget before they go to the meeting and pass it.

It is hard to conceive what objection there can be to a longer period intervening between the publication of the Report and Budget and the annual meeting, and it is to be hoped that the exigencies of the situation will be met by an alteration on this point, which would certainly produce a feeling of satisfaction among many of the ratepayers and enable them to take more interest in the annual meeting.

PERCY PECKHAM WRITES HOME

Dear Priscilla: I made my first real bet yesterday upon a real race course. You have always realised what a devil I am for sport, and so, hearing that a fiver might bring in enough to buy up the furniture in a house to let, I hastened to the pari-mutuel booth and bought a couple of tickets. The horses ran; my mare arrived home in good time; then I ran to the paying out counter. Alas! I had risked my fivers to get in return twenty cents—that is just about the fare the modern ricksha coolie demands for taking you from the Race Club to the Country Club.

I am not betting any more. For a few fleeting moments I thought I would develop the art of jockeyship. But a short chat with Hilly Bill drove the crazy notion out of my head.

Do you know, dear heart, that those jockies go through tortures that put Dante's Inferno in bliss. You get folk like Springie, or Weggie Ringrove, who put on any amount of avoirdupois during the off months, forgetting all about the transient pleasures of the Carlton, and retiring to bed about 9 p.m. and rising before the early bird has even thought about the worm. These jockies, during the spring madness of a training season will recite

Early to bed, and early to rise,
Lengthens the wind and brightens the eyes,
Keeps down the bar chits and quickens the pace
And perhaps helps to win in the Champions' race.

Perfect Priscilla, these men will deny themselves all the joys of a happy world. They will forget Cocktails; 2 C.'s; and small pollys. The vagaries of ricksha coolies for a time will be unknown to them. They will sweat between sheets; they will walk for miles with the sun blazing a 90 degree contribution to a parched earth, or trot for leagues with the rain beating down upon their curly locks. All this P. P. in order to hitch the belt two holes nearer the other end.

And then when race days arrive they will change shirts (that will outrival Benjamin's coat of many colors) at least half a dozen times during an afternoon, and steadily refuse to mutter "All the same again" or "Let's have the other half."

The jockies are the only folk who work during Race Week. The armed robber can rob and arm to his wicked heart's content, but the courts won't sit. You may have demand drafts by the score but you can demand the banks to open in vain. You may pray on your bended knees to get your passport vised for Pootoo, but the Consulate will refuse to relax. Even the brokers refuse to dash about after 11 a.m. ding the bell for the boy and you hear he is having chow. As a matter of fact he is having a wee gamble with the cook next door to see who will buy a ticket for the Champions. Shanghai during Race Week is more idle than the miners.

It's sweeps, sweeps, sweeps. Nothing to do with the chimney either—although most of our money seems to go up the spout. To win the Champions' Sweeps is enough to enable you to live in comfort for nearly a month at any of our first-class boarding houses, or even at some of the local hotels. Then there are club sweeps, and office sweeps, and family sweeps and more sweeps, in fact, where two or three are gathered together, and there is a dice box handy, there you will find sweeps and sweep tickets.

Champions' Day is a great day. You turn up to the Race Course knowing that before the sun sets in the west some one will be the possessor of anything between one hundred and two hundred thousand Mexican dollars—and that some one might be you—but very much more likely it will be your amah, houseboy, cook or tailor. But:

"Hope Springs eternal in the human breast.

"Some never are, but always to be blest."

And so there is another chance next year—and here's hoping.

Farewell Priscilla. Through good exchange and bad; through rain and sunshine; through good report and ill.

I am ever thine,
PERCY PECKHAM.

Hamsun's Hero Is Primitive Man In His Long Struggle With Nature

Growth Of The Soil. By Knut Hamsun. Translated from the Norwegian, with an introduction by W. W. Worster. Two volumes. Alfred A. Knopf.

Critics who were privileged to be present when a great symphony of Beethoven was produced for the first time must have felt a touch of the same awe, the same humility, that sweeps over critics today when a great book is available for a new public. Of some such epic quality as a Beethoven symphony is "Growth of the Soil," by Knut Hamsun, winner of the Nobel Prize for literature for 1920.

Published at any season the book would have met with a profound response, but published in the spring, the welcome it receives is peculiarly significant. In the midst of a vast city where the outward manifestations of spring are perhaps a few blades of fresh grass poking through moist soil in narrow squares and restricted plots of pathway where swelling buds on trees and a deeper blue in the patch of sky seen between tall buildings are the only visible signs of that quickening to life of the inarticulate longing of human beings to be near the earth at the season of its renaissance—the publication in such a city of Knut Hamsun's book is a memorable event.

Here is no reproduction of an angle of existence—no interesting little experience nor narrow approach to life. This is no naturalism nor realism nor romanticism. It is the stuff of life itself. Warp and woof, the book is deep, significant reality—the living current.

Back of the complicated machinery of our present day scheme of things, back of our political, social and economic activities, back of our local State, national and international relationships, back of our civilisation, the civilisations that have passed and the civilisations that are to come, back of all spectacular historical incidents and activities, back of and underneath all these forces, explaining them and making them possible—stands Primitive Man in his dumb, patient struggle with Nature, to take from the soil food whereby he may live. This primitive man, this unit of the world's work, is the man Hamsun has interpreted in his great book.

"The long, long road over the moors and up into the forest—who trod it into being first of all? Man, a human being, the first that came here. There was no path before he came. Afterward, some beast or other, following the faint tracks over marsh and moorland, wearing them deeper; after these again some Lapp gained scent of the path and took that way from field to field, looking to his reindeer. Thus was made the road through the great Almenning—the common tracts without an owner; no-man's land.

"The man comes, walking toward the north. He bears a sack, the first sack, carrying food some few implements—he comes the figure of a man in this great solitude. He trudges on; bird and beast are silent all about him; now and again he utters a word or two; speaking to himself—what is he seeking! A place, a patch of ground?

"He moves along the western side of a valley; wooded ground with leafy trees among the spruce and pine and grass beneath. Hours of this and twilight is falling, but his ear catches the faint purl of running water, and it heartens him like the voice of a living thing. He climbs the slope, and sees the valley half in darkness below, the sky to the south. He lies down to rest."

Thus Isak finds his home. He emerges from the unknown with a sack and a few crude implements. He searches for a suitable place to start his unending toil. After many days he finds the stretch of earth that his labors are to make fertile, the tract of land with streams, moors, forest lands there in the Norwegian Highland that has rested uncultivated since the morning of time. This soil he makes his own.

"For generations back, into forgotten time, his fathers before him had sowed corn; solemnly on a still, calm evening, best with a gentle fall of warm and misty rain, soon after the gray goose flight. Potatoes were a new thing, nothing mystic, nothing religious; women and children could plant them;—earth apples that came from foreign parts, like coffee; fine rich food but much like swedes and mangolds. Corn was nothing less than bread; corn or no corn meant life or death.

"Isak walked bareheaded, in Jesu's name, a sower. Like a tree-stump with hands to look at, but in his heart like a child. Every cast was made with care in a spirit of kindly resignation. Look! the tiny grains that are to take life and grow, shoot up into ears and give more corn again; so it is throughout all the earth where corn is sown. Palestine, America, the valleys of Norway itself—a great wide world, and here is Isak, tiny speck in the midst of it all, a sower. Little showers of corn flung out fanwise from his hand; a kindly, clouded sky, with a promise of the faintest little misty rain."

To convey any impression of the vitality and the intensity of this book in a review is as impossible as it would be to render any adequate version of a symphony movement by a shrill whistle or humming. One can only suggest the power of the work Hamsun has done.

Isak is an individual with his personal struggles with the earth. Isak is Man working in tune with Nature. Isak is primitive, elemental, terrifying. He might be the First Man—the Last Man—he epitomises all humanity. The genesis of life is his story told with the stark simplicity of Biblical narrative.

Isak builds his first hut of turf, his first rough shelter for his sheep, his goats, for himself and the woman who comes to him. He tills the soil; he sows; he reaps. He fells trees in the forest to make a better shelter. He increases his holdings. He works, patiently, steadily, humbly—the round of the soil. Inger, the woman, stands at his shoulder. The have children. Years pass.

The first hut gives place to a larger one—that, too, becomes a thing of the past. Sheds are built. A crude dwelling is put up. Larger quarters are arranged for the livestock. Trading is entered into with village folk in the distance. Produce is exchanged for simple manufactured articles—clocks and rings. Striking incidents occur. Inger murders her child because it is disfigured, is taken away to a distant town to prison, comes back. Even this seems merely incidental to the main theme—the soil. There are droughts, bad years, fierce storms in winter—but always the gentle spring comes on. The sowing shall go on.

Gradually other settlers come near—some strong, some weak. Some succeed in their task. Others fail and return to the life of the village. A copper deposit is discovered nearby and for a time a touch of the town penetrates, but it is a superficial and occasional penetration. Isak stands always on the soil, bending near the earth in his eternal labor and receiving in his inarticulate self the blessing and benediction of the earth.

The babies grow to childhood. Schools are started; a store is opened for the new settlers. Difficulties are faced, problems solved. There are new mowing machines to be acquired; sawmills to be built; threshing machines to be put in place; more complicated civilised arrangements to be made. The children grow up ready in their turn for their round of mating, working, taking to and bringing from the soil.

All conventional reviewer's tags and labels, words about plot, structure, type, character analysis, fall away as too trival to consider. Mr. Hamsun has done something unique, something that transcends the word "novel." He has taken the day by day, season by season existence of a man on his land and made his existence as plain and as miraculous as the gradual changing seasons.

Dim antiquity and the years that are to be are inextricably bound together in this book. Life, pulsing, surging, throbbing endless cycles of life—slow gestating growing cycles—birth, growth, death, birth—the book has the spirit of man's struggle with the universe in its pages. Mr. Hamsun has taken the keystone of the arch, the unit—the simplest story in the world, blown the breath of life upon it and created a new, a great work.

Today By Arthur Brisbane

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., tells his Bible class young gentlemen that to marry a woman "of different nationality or religion is risky."

So it is, for the individual, an imperfect creature is apt to nag and fight after a few years, or days, of new acquaintance.

But where would earth be now if different religions and races had not mixed in marriage? The Greeks, first great race, were made up of many religions and races, dark-skinned, dark-eyed from Asia, blue-eyed, light-haired Celts from the mountains to the north. It was a blue-eyed woman from Thrace (now Bulgaria) marrying some other type at Athens that gave to Greece Themistocles and conquest of the Persians.

Italy was a mixture of many races—Tuscans, Greeks, a dozen others. The French nation was made up of Romans, under Caesar, Iberian Celts, from across the Pyrenees, blond barbarians from the northwest. France is the result.

So with England, the United States, and Japan, all mixtures.

The best kind of horse is thoroughbred. The best kind of human being is a mongrel, from many mixtures, racial and religious.

There are certainly thirty nationalities, more than a dozen ancient religions, combining inside the skull of John D. Rockefeller to capitalise a thousand million dollars into useful scientific and philanthropic work.

You can ship a bale of goods by water from New York down to Buenos Aires, the other side of the Equator, for less than you can ship that bale of goods across New York City from the North to the East River. That is the magnificent distribution achieved in our efficient land.

A banker in New York, with a few tens of inherited millions, is suing his young wife for a divorce.

He names an Indian half-breed guide as co-respondent. She sues him likewise and may name five co-respondents.

All this sometimes happens in prosperous families. And if they enjoy it, and can pay the lawyers, no one need object.

The interesting part of this story is the voice of a child saying through his guardian, appointed for the occasion, "I am only twenty-six months old, and I think somebody ought to protect me."

The man asking for the divorce says the child is not his, although it has his name. The Indian half-breed is alleged to be the father. But the child has blue eyes and light golden curls, not usual in the families of Indians.

Interesting case for a lawyer now, for a Lecky, later.

Here is cheer in the day's news. Forty years ago in Boston there were forty human beings for every bathtub. Now there is one tub for every four human beings. This means more to civilisation than statistics about savings bank deposits, or any statistics, except on the withdrawal of serious books from the Boston Library.

Friends who preach class consciousness and teach that the thing is to take from the rich what the poor have not are invited to study Boston bathtub statistics.

Once the only man with a bathtub was an emperor. If you had taken it away from him he would have gone without his bath and the bathtub idea would have dropped out of sight.

But he had his bathtub, then the courtiers had their bathtubs, then the very prosperous had them. Now the Boston taxi driver has one.

You must let prosperity work down from the top, toward the bottom, encouraging it on its way, and taxing the top to help the movement. But you can't give anybody anything by taking something away from somebody else.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper (Registered Trade Mark)

is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Avoid disappointment by refusing substitutes which do not possess its advantages.

"Silver Streak" and a "LUCKY STRIKE"

We don't keep "good things" to ourselves.

Either ponies or Cigarettes. We advertise them!

In Sunday's pink paper we wrote:—

IF YOU BACK A PONY "TO WIN" IN THE PARI-MUTUEL, COVER YOURSELF BY BACKING IT (With Double Your Winning Stake) "FOR A PLACE," AND ESPECIALLY SO IN LARGE FIELDS.

For example:—

In the Autumn Cup, 1¼ mile, run 8th November, 1920.

	Win Tickets.	Dividend.	Place Tickets.	Dividend.
1. THE EAGLE	413	$24.50	379	$ 8.20
2. SILVER STREAK	861	—	372	$ 8.30
3. TICHFIELD	198	—	93	$18.20

$5 and $10 on "Silver Streak" for Win and Place, would return $16.60, thus saving the lost "Win" Stake.

And Lo, on Monday afternoon:—

In the Cathay Cup, 1¼ mile, run 2nd May, 1921.

	Win Tickets.	Dividend.	Place Tickets.	Dividend.
1. SILVER STREAK	226	$46.90	307	$20.80

'I Do Not Like Seriousness—G. K. Chesterton

The Uses Of Diversity. A Book Of Essays. By G. K. Chesterton. Dodd, Mead & Co.

One of the pleasant and comfortable things in Mr. Chesterton's equipment is his carrying capacity for millions of words with kernels in them. He swallows them, apparently, in a dried condition, and allows them to swell up inside of him, and they presently reappear with a widely different content and specific gravity from anything perceptible in them when he spooned them out of the product of writers more determined than he to say what they had to say and be over with it. Whether they came from the rocky depths of Chaucer's old Stilton or from the custards and curries of the modern novelists, by the time Mr. Chesterton expels them they have acquired a distinctive quality, as unmistakable as that scent of chyre which always hung round the adventuress, or as the first few bars of "Annie Laurie" You like them, particularly, because they are all old friends whom you have seen before, and you like them all the better for the subtle something which they have picked up during their sojourn with Mr. Chesterton.

One of the ungenerous things which people used to say about this fluent and amiable writer is that he wrote paradoxes—wrote them to death, and had no mercy. Possibly he has done so, once or twice, when his smoke began to pour out of the bottle which his publisher, as reckless as the Arabian fisherman, had uncorked, but it seems more likely that the trouble was with the wits of his readers rather than with the fumes from Mr. Chesterton, which are never acrid, after all, and often fragrant and beguiling. The public "ear" has become more familiar with his key, nowadays, and his remarks are understood more fairly as the spontaneous expression of a whimsical devouring and assimilation of the thousand perfectly serious concerns of the world. He writes as he does because it is as natural for him to write that way as it was natural for Matthew Arnold or Anthony Trollope, say, to write as they did. He should never be blamed for it; on the contrary, he should be thanked for pointing out to more stolid thinkers the way to escape the sad consequences of their own thinking.

The title of his new volume called "The Uses of Diversity," is an instance of his whimsicality in handling syllables; with a slight twist of his wits he tempts the reader to jump to the conclusion that all is not lost, and that diversity, well managed, may be as useful as the word which Shakespeare happened to use, may smell as sweet and blossom as luxuriantly in the dust he raises about it.

Of course, nothing is more arbitrary than a book-title; like Cassio's purse, it is something, nothing; the main thing is to get a title which the public can remember long enough to identify the book, Mr. Chesterton, however, knows perfectly well that his public never frets about titles, but simply asks, in the bookstore, for "the last thing" he has done. This, indeed, is one of the uses of a diversity of talent, though you may be sure he hasn't said anything about it in the book, which contains a great heap of his wit and good humor, arranged under thirty or forty headlines.

Why shouldn't it be possible for so able a writer as Mr. Chesterton, even though he may not be wholly able to repress a shudder at being "billed" as a "humorist" on his present lecture tour, to rest without resentment under the classification of a "goodhumorist"? He is distinctly that, and it is one of his many saving graces. For a man who writes so much as he does comes to stand in need of some sort of saving graces, after all; because much speaking leads to inattentive ears, after a while, unless the talk is always such as the hearer feels he can't afford to miss; and no philosopher can hope to keep his stool in the grove unless he keeps his hearers from fretting about what time it is.

Mr. Chesterton knows all about this, and blurts out part of it in the first sentence in the book: "I do not like seriousness. I think it is irreligious. . . . The man who takes everything seriously is the man who makes an idol of everything," and so on; he deprecates the solemn ass even more than the silly one, as a worse example to youth, which he undoubtedly is. He detests stupidity; but if his broad tolerance had stomach even for that vicious defect in humanity he would be rather more than human, for his own keen wit goes through pretence with a blue flash which the victim may see, though he cannot feel the thrust which destroys.

But to dilate upon the quality of Mr. Chesterton's talent is as superfluous as to give three cheers for the multiplication table. His admirers will find many plums in the pudding which now smokes under their quivering nostrils. Possibly some of them will think there is nothing better in the book than these observations in his "Thoughts on Christmas:"

"I have always held that Peter Pan was wrong. . . . His mistake is the mistake of the new theory of life. I might call it Peter Pantheism. It is the notion that there is no advantage in striking root. . . . One of the things that strike root is Christmas; and another is middle age. . . . All the same, the children ought to think of the Never Never Land, the world that is outside. But we [adults] ought to think of the Ever Ever Land—the world which is inside, and the world which will last."

Surgeon Repairs Stabbed Heart

A case of a man's life being saved after he had been stabbed right through the heart is related by Dr. E. M. Freese, of Grant Hospital, Columbus, Ohio, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, and the way it was done is so interesting that the details of the operation are worth reading. The following description is only slightly condensed:

"A colored man was stabbed about 8 p.m., and taken to Grant Hospital about 8.30. He was carried directly to the operating room, where Dr. Freese saw him a few minutes after his arrival. He was unconscious. Respirations were feeble and very shallow. No pulse was perceptible. The pupils were widely dilated and the skin was in a cold perspiration. A spot of blood on the shirt over the heart indicated the site of the wound. Closer examination revealed a wound one-half inch long, two inches to the left of the sternum. Only a small amount of blood had escaped from the wound, not enough to account for the condition of the patient.

"The chest was painted with tincture of iodine and under light ether anesthesia, with the wound as the center, I made a U-shaped incision with the base outward. The skin and pectoral muscles were laid back, the fourth and fifth costal cartilages cut through, and the corresponding ribs carefully separated from the pleura for about three inches, and then bitten with bone forceps and broken back out of the way without injury to the underlying structures. This gave a very satisfactory exposure of the field, and a wound of the pericardium was at once seen.

"A small stream of blood came from this wound, which was now enlarged upward and to the right. The reason for the lack of pulse, even in the carotid artery, was now perfectly apparent, as the pericardium was filled by a clot which produced almost a complete tamponade. When this clot was scooped out the heart began at once to beat violently, spurting a stream of blood on the anesthetist and over the field. The heart wound was instantly plugged with the tip of the index finger of the left hand, and kept plugged, as well as possible, until a suture was passed and tied. This nearly checked the flow, but it was necessary to pass a second suture.

"Much blood was lost during these manipulations; but the heart start still continued in fair shape, and the anesthetist reported that he could feel the pulse. It was now found, however, that a good deal of blood was welling up from behind the heart. Grasping the heart in the left hand, with the index finger hooked down over the apex, I raised the organ enough to expose a wound in the posterior wall nearly as large as the one which had been closed in the anterior. Owing, however, to the thickness of the left ventricle, it was not bleeding so rapidly. Two sutures were used to close this wound.

"The heart had almost stopped beating, and no pulse could be felt by the anesthetist. My assistant started an intravenous injection of salt solution. The pericardium was sponged out and closed with continuous iodine catgut, the ribs replaced, and the flap of skin and muscle sutured in place without drainage. A little less than a quart of solution was put into the vein.

"The patient was now taken to his room, the foot of the bed elevated, hot water bottles and blankets placed around him, a hypodermic injection of morphine and atropine given and a rectal drip started. The morphine was repeated in an hour, as the patient was very restless. On his return to his room his pulse was 72 but very small. The slow pulse was regarded as being due to the handling of the heart. He arrived at his room at 9.15.

"The after-history of the case was satisfactory, and at no time was there any great cause for alarm. The temperature rose to 100 every afternoon until the eighteenth day, when the patient was allowed to be taken out in the wheel chair; from that time it never rose above normal.

"Oct. 5 he was discharged from the hospital. The wound had long since healed perfectly."

CAPTURED JAP SAID TO BE AIDE OF BARON UNGERN

Prisoner Says He Joined Russian Leader Under Misrepresentations

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 1.—In reply to inquiries regarding the report that a Japanese, who was employed under Baron Ungern in Outer Mongolia, had been captured by Chinese troops at the front, General Higashi, Japanese Military Attache at Peking, gave the following information to a representative of Reuter's Agency:

"About a week ago it was reported in a local Chinese paper that a Japanese named Tienshan (Tsukudayama in Japanese) had been captured by the Chinese near Pankiang and sent to Kalgan, that he had confessed that he was a retired Japanese Captain and that he had served under General Baron Ungern in a position of command over certain Japanese. Inquiries were made in various quarters and it was ascertained that a Japanese named Hatakeyama had been sent to Kalgan from Urga by the Chinese forces and that the man was a retired corporal of artillery.

"According to the Chinese Authorities Hatakeyama confessed that he had joined Baron Ungern's army for a proposed advance on Verkhne-Udinsk. Ungern, however, changed his plans and decided to attack Urga. Hitakeyama had no desire to fight against the Chinese and proposed to give himself up to the Chinese if they would guarantee his safety after surrender. The Chinese Commandant at the front asked for instructions from the Military Authorities in Peking and sent the man on to Kalgan with instructions for him to be transferred to Peking. He will probably be handed over to the Japanese authorities at Tientsin by whom he will be dealt with according to Japanese law.

"It may be mentioned in this connexion that in June last year Ungern's men were recruiting in the Chinese Eastern Railway zone so-called Japanese volunteers for an advance against Verkhne-Udinsk. On learning of this fact the Japanese Military Authorities in Manchuria took every precaution to prevent Japanese from joining Ungern's army, and at Manchuli about thirty Japanese were arrested and from there sent back to Japan. Among them were found barbers, bean-curd sellers, workmen dismissed from the South Manchuria railway and other laborers. From reports received later it appears that from thirty to forty Japanese eluded the vigilance of the Japanese authorities and, disguised as wood cutters and charcoal burners, joined Ungern's forces. These men were vagrants without means of subsistence. The character of these men will be clearly revealed when Hitakeyama arrives. He is said to have been the leader of the Japanese with Ungern."
